EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kozhikode

GOVERNOR ARIF Mohammed Khan has said the Udayam project of the Kozhikode district administration to rehabilitate those abandoned on the streets is a model to the country. The Governor said a compassionate mind is essential for a civilised society and that lasting happiness is possible only through compassionate interventions. He was speaking during a visit to Chevayur Udayam Home on Sunday.

“It is a matter of great pleasure that women in Kerala are coming into mainstream, including the bureaucracy and politics. Having been in Kerala for more than two years, I have witnessed many exemplary activities.” The Governor visited and assessed the facilities at Udayam Home. A few inmates shared their experiences at Udayam home.

So far, about 1,500 people have been rehabilitated through Udayam project at four care-homes functioning at Chevayur, Vellimadukunnu, Mankavu and Vellayil.

The project, which has the collaboration of several NGOs and individuals, is under the direct supervision of former district collector Kozhikode Seeram Sambashiva Rao. Presently, Udayam focuses on offering skilled training to the inmates, help them secure employment and maintain a self-sustainable livelihood.

District Collector Dr N Tej Lohit Reddy said a group of staff, volunteers and police officers visit the streets and encourage the street dwellers to seek help from Udayam. Destitutes discharged from hospitals are also admitted at Udayam homes. There is a standard operating procedure followed for admission of new residents. After admission, a psychosocial assessment will be done on the inmates using a bio-psycho-social framework, based on which appropriate interventions will be planned. Police verification of all residents is also done.

Udayam home has provisions such as the Alcoholic Anonymous group (AA group) where individuals who are addicted to substance abuse can come together to share and resolve their issues.

District Collector Dr N Tej Lohit Reddy welcomed the gathering. Deputy collector Anithakumari presented a gift to the Governor. Mayor Dr Beena Philip, ward councillor P N Ajitha and officials from various departments were present.
